Festival des Films du Monde de Montréal 2018: Compétition Mondiale - Best screenplay

The Place

DIRECTOR: Paolo Genovese
COUNTRY: Italy
YEAR: 2017
TIME: 1h 45min

A man is sitting at a table at the far end of a bar. He is always there, day and night, receiving continuous visitors. Each of his clients wants something and is driven by a deep desire, a wish that is difficult, if not impossible to realize. Yet... to that man everything seems possible. "I can do it" he repeats to each of them. But there is a price to pay. Who is this man and who sets the rules? It's not important. Because choices and consequences only concern the men sitting in front of him in that café, it is up to them to define what is good and what is evil; they are completely free to choose their own path. They are men in need of miracles. From time to time they return to the café to tell how their lives are proceeding. There stories are interwoven in a plot that gets more and more complicated and tense, wonderful or terrible, tragic or full of poetry. And even that humble intermediary, facing so much humanity, will no longer be impatient ...

Festa del Cinema di Roma 2017: Special Event - Closing Film

I'm Back (Sono Tornato)

DIRECTOR: Luca Miniero
YEAR: 2018 TIME: 100min

"You were a people of illiterates, and after 80 years I come back and I still find a people of illiterates." Rome. Our days. Eighty years after his death, Benito Mussolini is among us again. The war is over, his Claretta is gone and everything seems changed. Apparently. His return is casually filmed by Andrea Canaletti, a young documentary filmmaker with great aspirations but very few successes. Believing him to be a comedian, Canaletti decides to make Mussolini into the protagonist of a documentary that will finally consecrate him to the world of cinema. The two thus begin a surreal cohabitation, that between trips to Italy and curious moments of confrontation with today's Italians. This leads the Duce to become more and more notorious and recognized, to the point of becoming the protagonist of a TV show and making up his mind to reconquer the country ... A politically incorrect comedy that poses a disturbing question: what if he really comes back?

Massimo Alberti is the owner of the "Miracolo Italiano" (The Italian Miracle), a bed and breakfast now reduced to a dilapidated building. Too few customers and too many taxes. Massimo has an epiphany: in order to survive, he has to transform the B&B into a place of worship, where he will host tourists in exchange for a donation. Tax-free. And to do so, he must establish his own religion, involving his sister Adriana, and the ideologist Marco. "Selfism" is born, the first religion in which you can be absolved from taxes and contributions.

Lavazza Italian Film Festival 2018: Comedy, Italian Style

We'll Be Young and Beautiful (Saremo Giovani e Bellissimi)

DIRECTOR: Letizia Lamartire

Isabella still sings Tic Tac, the song that made her famous in the early nineties, when she was only seventeen. Her place is the Big Star, which has also become her second home. Her young son Bruno is her guitarist. The two are inseparable, they perform every night together and they share a ramshackle but happy life of unpaid bills and midnight strolls around the city. Bruno, however, dreams of a different musical career. Light touches of comedy and the music bring to life the slow but necessary separation between mother and son, a crucial and painful detachment. Just like the end of any other love story.

The two escaped the persecution carried out by the Taliban in Afghanistan during the first years of the new millennium. Their mother, who never stopped waiting for news of her children, does not recognize him. After several uneasy phone calls, Ismail will meet with the fate of his family, dealing with the senselessness of the war, the history of his people, the Hazara, and the oldest form of love, that of a mother for her child.
