Milan state police sergeant Franco Amore (Pierfrancesco Favino) is the antithesis of Clint Eastwood's Dirty Harry. He's an honest cop, a "man of integrity", who in 35 years on the job has not fired his gun at anyone.

"My dad is Amore by name and by nature," says his grown daughter Anna (Noemi Bertoldi). Both name and nature are put to the test in the Italian language crime thriller The Last Night of Amore (L'Ultima Notte di Amore).

Amore's amore is his second wife, Viviana (Linda Caridi), who is from a mafia family. He suspects that link is why he is still a sergeant at 55. He follows the rules and has his pension in sight, though he does earn a little on the side working as driver for Viviana's flashy jewel dealer cousin Cosimo (Antonio Gerardi).

Cosimo is expanding his business with the help of Chinese gangsters. When the head of one of the gangs, Bao Zhang (Mao Wen), has a heart attack in less than salubrious circumstances, Amore, on the spot, saves the man's life and changes his own.

Zhang offers him a job in security. Amore, who is about to retire, agrees but then learns that the first shipment he must secure – diamonds? drugs? – is this week, while he's still on the force.

The amount offered for one hour's work is €5000, equal to three months salary. With Vivi-ana and Cosimo keen for him to take it, he assents and cuts in his squad mate and best friend Dino (Francesco Di Leva).

Pierfrancesco Favino as Franco Amore in The Last Night of Amore

Franco and Dino meet two Chinese couriers, who hold a briefcase containing the shipment, to drive them to Zhang. In a freeway tunnel they are pulled over by two uniformed police officers. What happens next changes everything. It is a brilliant scene of sustained tension.

This is the mid-point of this two-hour film written and directed by Italian actor turned director Andrea Di Stefano. You may remember him as the priest in Ang Lee's Life of Pi (2012).

The second hour, the immediate aftermath of what happens in the tunnel, takes place over the one night of the title. It is Amore's final night on duty. Whether it will also be his last night on earth is the question.

Favino, who has made his share of Hollywood films, including World War Z (2013) with Brad Pitt, is convincing as a straight cop who walks one crooked line. Does he turn himself in, go on the run or realise he has a bit of Dirty Harry in him after all? Cinematographer Guido Michelotti captures this tightrope walk, from the opening aerial shot of Milan, sweeping from its old world charm to its criminal underbelly, to the heart-racing last night.

The Last Night of Amore, a box office hit in Italy, is the opening night movie of the ST. Ali Italian Film Festival. I have seen another of the headline films, The Eight Mountains (Le Otto Montagne), written and directed by Belgian filmmakers Charlotte Vandermeersch and Felix van Groeningen (whose English language debut was the superb Beautiful Boy in 2018, starring Timothee Chalamet and Steve Carrell). It's a thought-provoking, moving film that I would give three-and-a-half stars. Set in the Italian Alps, it might be an Italian Brokeback Mountain or it might be an exploration of deep platonic love between two boys who become men. Will they kiss?, was one of the questions in my mind as the story unfolded over 147 minutes. Whether they do or don't is for viewers to find out.

Wilco (dBpm Records)

An opening track called Infinite Surprise is valiant notice of intent after 12 albums. Asking Welsh indie weirdo Cate Le Bon to produce seals the deal. While the genre surrender of 2021's Cruel Country was fine, Jeff Tweedy is best when he's pushing his natural storyteller's twang in an avant garde direction. Textures of strangely pleasing abrasion and other random sonic events (hello guitarist Nels Cline) underpin songs that meander between heartfelt melancholy and the surreal. Ten Dead is both at once, A Bowl and Pudding might be either. Promised surprises range from the guitars jangling like off-kilter coins in each ear in Sunlight Ends, the industrial whistle that cuts the languid acoustic waltz of Pittsburgh and the toe-tapping complexity of the title track. "I'd laugh until I die if it wasn't my life/If it wasn't me in the mirror," Tweedy sings in Evicted, one of several songs that touch on empathy in a harsh world. For all his surprises, he's reliable that way.

A BRIGHTER TOMORROW

(95 minutes) M

The Italian comic Nanni Moretti has been starring in his own films since he was a young man in the 1970s — but in hindsight it feels as if he was always meant to play a cranky old lefty, aware of being out of step but unwilling to let his ideals go. A treat for longtime fans, his latest vehicle casts him as a filmmaker battling to finish a historical drama about a communist circus, backed by a wayward French financier (Mathieu Amalric, the manic foil to Moretti's glumness). To whatever degree this is a self-portrait, it's not an uncritical one: while the hero may cling to an ideal of the collective, he isn't great at listening to other people, including his frustrated wife (Margherita Buy). As usual for Moretti, the plot is a framework for vignettes that range in tone from melancholic to sharply satirical (suffice to say he isn't likely to be getting a Netflix deal any time soon). As usual, too, it's up to the viewer to play psychoanalyst and decide how the fragments fit together. Screens as part of the Italian Film Festival. Check online for session times.

THE TEST OF TIME

Cries of Nazi porn didn't stop Liliana Cavani. Fifty years later, she is still bearing witness.

Liliana Cavani's best-known film, The Night Porter, is a brilliantly wrought (and equally controversial) portrait of a sadomasochistic relationship between a Nazi concentration camp guard played with eloquent ease by Erik Doge and a teenage prisoner, a wealthy Charlotte Rampling. In postwar Italy, the perversion was a taboo, and Cavani's film was almost banned. In America, it was similarly respected or censored. Nazi porn remains the subject of heated debate, a lit revolutionary act of taboo-breaking, or twisted and politically reprehensible? Or, indeed, both? Cavani's conclusion at the time included demands for censors, who had also recently introduced the "parental guidance" The Censor, along with her director and Pier Paolo Pasolini, the first female director of The Night Porter was seen to kick the boots out of the Italian New Wave.

Cavani is 90th, although anyone viewing her would take her for a least a decade younger. She has just made her first film in 50 years, which the lack of the challenge—she says—wouldn't want to repeat many only—will be her last. It opens in competition at the Venice Film Festival last month, where Cavani also received a Daddario for her 85th year in film. Rampling was on hand to present it.

"In a certain sense, you could say that Liliana Cavani and I have been defined by The Night Porter." Rampling said in the first, right-as-it-is a passionately partisan speech. "She showed us—a beautiful, stylized, radical sense—what is monstrous... She turned her camera toward the beast, straight at it, eyes wide, surrounding it, and she did it, so elegantly, it wasn't rears." The first-night audience responded with a standing ovation.

Eighty-five years after The Night Porter, especially from the Italian press, were less relevant. The director of The Night Porter addresses a suitably feminist subject for a woman—she and the world—about touched this kind of Old Girl for middle-aged Italian. Several have been great examples, a few of them former partners who have since stepped back for their regular summer holiday, arguing, enigmatically.

She showed us what is monstrous... She turned her camera toward the beast, eyes wide.

giving to all people's minds. Meanwhile, amidst the horror towards Earth. Over the years, (from Red and Blue) is an ancient physicist who is interwoven with the same as the American religious, checking the asteroid's progress, the greatest now-in-20th-century of destroying Earth, adding that the confusion as it gets closer.

You might think that would focus the collectiveness, but very far from the. Beyond the world, who is following the news on some crackpot in the various website, are properly afraid. Every week it focuses on the coming 20th-century of the world, their freedom (as Cavani Cerini). Their nation past and present, various religious and an working out what he met they will my sex, given that the conversation in a highly competitive space.

"I'm afraid of many things, everyone would have a different reaction. We come face to face with life, while usually, we follow a daily routine and do not stop to reflect on our existence," says Cavani. The thought, she tells us, is not in The Order of Time, but about dealing with the worst possible things. "Because the thing that is worse than the worst thing, you can't know, is that it might happen."

Cavani came face to face with the worst things as a young documentary filmmaker, researching material for the series she made for RAI, Italy's national television network, on the Third Reich and Stalin. She was a child during World War II; she remembers hearing the crash of bombs without feeling anything.

"Then I studied ancient literature at the university, in fact. I knew more about the Peloponnesian Wars than the 20th century. I had to open my eyes—and was astonished by what I saw, horrendous images every day." Her voice is unshakably at the moment, "So that was my second degree."

As a creator of fiction, her guiding lights were always Swedish director Ingmar Bergman and Italian Vittorio De Sica, who made the heart-wrenching Evangelisti.

"Making documentaries was the most devastating war history prevented me from making lighter cinema later," she says. The starting point for The Night Porter was Witness of the Resistance (1955), for which she interviewed partisan fighters. One was a teacher who had hidden away in a bunker in Dachau, where she had been in prison. Another, who had been in Auschwitz, said she couldn't forgive the Nazis for making her "discuss a part of myself, something I didn't think I would be." What they were, she wasn't.

Fifty years after The Night Porter, the Order of Time was Cavani's first working with Italy's own social agency, putting her attention in the world of her characters. Elsewhere, Giulio Francesco, himself, observes with severity that if anyone refers to the Night Porter as a feminist film, an academic combat, some viewers will warn them to be aware that there could be as a feminist for good. "As if there had been no witnesses or photographers."

Reverent incense change highlight and her truth, she sees cinema for those who find it political or financially convenient.

Another variety of fiction is brewing in the mind of Il Tempo (Richard Gere)—the German technocrat among these Il Tempo films—who is relying on Rampling's managing to be a witness through Amagotchi. The financial markets, he points out, are rising. That's where the real truth lies.

Cavani's primary concern, however, is with the film's readability, clarity and speed of passage—inspired, according to the reader, by a widely known book of essays by physicist Carlo Rovelli. Sometimes, says Cavani, she will read a scene something that makes her writing more complete literary response, but a page of organization it was a more readable little book, she said The Order of Time. She is inspired by Rovelli's observations about the arbitrary way we mark time in order to make it meaningful in our lives, or "the 19th century"—and she is arguing it over it that make its passage. "Time doesn't have a stable figure in itself. In itself, it doesn't mean anything except in relation to something that happens. We all agree that it passes, but we don't go further," she says. Rovelli himself sees as a scientist in the project.

Working these ideas into a screenplay, director refers to it—she'll probably do it. Cavani had a long and agonizing career, she reminded the Venice Festival who she also received her own award of merit where she was, holding her Golden Lion. She has a huge body of risky, visceral work, including a recent reworking of the Argentine story, The Test of the Cavalli (1999). The Stone (1988), which picks upon The Night Porter's scenes with a critical and degradation, that in its post-war Italy, and Figlio di Tizio (1992) with John Malkovich at the moment. She has also made three films about the life of St. Francis' Assisi, to the Night Porter in its own right, enduring impact of The Night Porter but then, very few films have. And who knows? She may not be finished yet.

Un marchio distintivo senza uguali, uno degli stilisti più amati di tutti i tempi sul grande schermo anche in Australia The Genius of Gianni Versace, il tributo di Zannino

Thelma Film Festival è un evento anglo. Celebrare non solo il cinema, ma anche la cultura e il design italiani. Con questo spirito Casa Zannino, in arte Zannino, ha definito l'operazione australiana che rende omaggio alla celebre mostra del cinema di Venezia.

Sin dal 2000, attraverso la proposta di classici e di produzioni contemporanee, l'Australia vanta infatti il più grande evento dedicato all'epoca cinematografica che si svolge oltre i confini del Belpaese.

L'editore di questa nobile iniziativa australiana, che per l'occasione si occupa di moda, per tanto, la programmazione ha compreso un documentario dedicato all'iconica figura di Gianni Versace. «Gli austriaci sono profondamente affascinati dal gusto italiano da anni. I Made in Italy» rappresenta un marchio distintivo senza eguali», ha commentato Zannino.

La presentazione della pellicola, incentrata su uno degli stilisti più amati di tutti i tempi, è destinata a riscuotere dunque un grande successo e a rivelare il genio di Versace. The Genius of Gianni Versace, diretto da Salvatore Zannino, in arte Vincenti de Paul, è un personaggio che ha guidato il mondo della moda italiana. cento del marchio Versace, si è affermato in primo piano nella profonda avvicinata che lega alla stilista. «Si tratta di una figura che è stata molto importante per la moda italiana e non solo da un punto di vista professionale. È per questo che ho scelto di dedicare questo lavoro alla sua memoria».

Gianni Versace ha dato inizio a numerose rivoluzioni - ha commentato - infatti non solo ha un'idea della persona che deve essere, ma, attraverso il suo talento, ha supportato le persone perché si sentissero sicure e proprio giovani e serene.

Il suo pensiero progressivo, inoltre, ha consentito alle donne una veste propria, dunque, per mezzo di creazioni straordinarie, sono diventate potenti e compatibili dalle proprie capacità?».

Il documentario quindi ha raccolto le esperienze del più sventurato collaboratore dello stilista, il cui lavoro ha discusso di una persona. Il tutto è stato girato in quattro anni.

Nelle interviste proposte, infatti, «gentile» e l'aggettivo più importante nei racconti di uno degli attori che hanno raccontato un'epoca e, il tempo stesso, un uomo che si è distinto per il suo lavoro geniale.

L'apellosi delica dunque un'idee geniale e, il tempo stesso, modesto, piuttosto che un temperamento passionale. «I cui entusiasmi travolgenti coinvolgono chiunque».

«Gianni Versace era un animatore della vita», ha dichiarato De Paul, «e il suo approccio di carisma verso qualunque cosa lo rendeva magnetico e stimolante».

Dal longometraggio sono inoltre emerse le relazioni di amicizia che il protagonista aveva instaurato con personaggi della moda: Madonna, Tina Turner o la Principessa Diana d'Inghilterra. Personalità dunque eminentemente donne e, se da un lato, ma accomodate dal affetto e dalla stima, parate per il sarto di Reggio Calabria come lui aveva definito.

«Gianni è ancora straordinariamente contemporaneo e ispirato per sempre», ha aggiunto il regista che, aggiunge, ha rivelato anche di avere ricevuto un enorme successo: possono non solo dalla critica, ma anche dai fan di un'epoca design. In particolare, attraverso un messaggio diretto di Santo Versace fratello dello stilista che spiega attualmente un ruolo di direzione all'interno della casa di moda, si è infatti il delinquento e il criminologo per il tritacolo di Gianni propone un documento.

Il film dunque non è limitato solo a raccontare il talento dello stilista, ma lo apprende anche in modo, talvolta divertito, della sua vita quotidiana, che aveva trascorso tra il lavoro e gli amici.

Per esempio ha rivelato come Gianni avesse chiacchiere al telefono con il cantante Elton John, o di come fosse capace di resistere sfilare in modo. «Settecento trecento quattro un concerto rock in roll», ha affermato De Paul.

Il progetto cinematografico non dimentica infatti di ricordare gli elementi distintivi della stilista Versace, quali il logo Medusa, l'utilizzo della pelle e la vivacità nella scelta dei colori.

Alla domanda su quali siano le caratteristiche principali che più predilige del marchio, il regista ha citato la celebre collezione «Gianni Beach», quella di cui ha elogiato la maestria attraverso la stilista ha creato, per mezzo di una sola maglietta, come il primo elemento della sua collezione capace di belare anche sui tessuti».

Il regista ha concluso dunque ringraziando Gianni, proprio come se fosse presente in persona. «Grazie per avermi dato speranza e grandi opportunità», ha detto nascondendo una lacrima commovente.

E così, agli occhi degli spettatori, si eleva il ritratto di uno stilista italiano che, anche oggi, è tanto in tutto il mondo non solo per le sue creazioni straordinarie, ma anche per la capacità di dare il suo contributo alla moda e alla vita attraverso i suoi talenti e una singolare sensibilità.

Il cinema dunque ha commemorato un genio, che ha incantato con i suoi abiti intere generazioni, e che ha trasformato non solo il mondo, ma anche cinema, teatro e opera consentendoci come immortali, attraverso la bellezza.

La Chimera is a transcendent film that blurs the boundaries of the ancient and the modern and recalls the greatest artists of Italian cinema. By Christos Tsiolkas.

Alice Rohrwacher's La Chimera – about a group of rombaroli (grave robbers) who fossick for ancient Etruscan artefacts in Tuscany to sell illegally on the black market – is a work of continuing surprise and ebullience. As with Rohrwacher's previous features, The Wonders (2014) and Happy As Lazzaro (2018), there is a hard-edged politics of class and place that informs the film. She focuses on the experiences of people whose connection to a peasant past is both tangible and precarious. Though her stories are set largely in rural landscapes, we are always conscious of the threat of hyperreal urbanisation and modernity just outside the frame.

Two characters are central to the film. We first encounter Arthur (Josh O'Connor) on a train. He is an Englishman who has just been released from prison. A chain-smoker, dressed in a dishevelled and grimy white linen suit, he is surly and rude to his fellow passengers and to the train's conductor. Returning to the village where he now lives, he is equally dismissive of his fellow gang members.

Arthur only begins to show signs of empathy or affection when he visits the decaying villa of Flora (Isabella Rossellini), the mother of his girlfriend, Berianina (Ylia Yara Vianello). Flora, whose brood of daughters mill around

This year, festival attendees have 28 films to select from, 4 retrospective titles and a programme of shorts. Whether it's hilarious comedies, dark dramas, or insightful documentaries there's something for all tastes!

The Eight Mountains - REVIEW

ARTS & ENTERTAINMENT SCREEN

Mark Morellini
SEPTEMBER 8, 2023

The bittersweet story of a 40 year friendship between two men set in the backdrop of the Italian Alps makes pleasurable and universally relatable viewing.

Pietro met Bruno on a family holiday to the Italian Alps which became an annual event. They bonded initially only for convenience but the relationship quickly flourished. Each summer they would meet and spend precious time together, but as they matured life altered the friendship. The choices they made also set their paths in life.

They went their own ways and 15 years elapsed before they reunited. Could the friendship be rekindled after so much time had elapsed? Can the passage of time adversely affect friendships? Which of the two men, if either, could actually say they made the right choices and succeeded in life?

ST. ALI Italian Film Festival 2023: Vetrina dell'Eccellenza del Cinema Italiano

di Marco Testa

Mentre le vivide sfumature del cinema italiano si preparano a illuminare gli schermi, i cinefili in Australia attendono con ansia il ritorno dello ST. ALI Italian Film Festival. In programma per adorare le sale cinematografiche di tutto il paese a partire dal 19 settembre, questa annuale rassegna cinematografica promette di portare le ultime gemme dell'industria cinematografica italiana nelle città, tra cui Sydney, Melbourne, Brisbane, Perth, Adelaide, Canberra e Byron Bay.

Il festival prende il via con il coinvolgente dramma L'ultima notte di Amore, diretto dalla stimata superstar italiana Pierfrancesco Favino. Ambientato a Milano, questo elegante thriller narra la storia di un tenente di polizia (interpretato dallo stesso Favino) che si ritrova invischiato in una rete di crimine e corruzione alla vigilia del suo pensionamento. Il film ha ottenuto un notevole successo al botteghino italiano, catturando il pubblico con la sua avvincente narrazione.

Tra le presentazioni speciali del festival, i riflettori si accendono su Burning Hearts (Ti mangio il cuore), un'intensa storia di crimine, amore e vendetta ambientata in Puglia. Il film, girato in suggestivo bianco e nero, introduce la cantante Elodie nel suo primo ruolo da attrice, raggiungendo un ulteriore livello di attesa per gli spettatori.

Un viaggio nel mondo dell'arte e della storia attende il pubblico con Caravaggio's Shadow (L'ombra di Caravaggio), un dramma storico scritto e diretto da Michele Placido. Con protagonisti Riccardo Scamarcio e Isabelle Huppert, questa gemma cinematografica esplora le prove e le tribolazioni affrontate dal geniale pittore rinascimentale Caravaggio mentre si trova sotto inchiesta da parte del Vaticano.

L'ultima creazione di Nanni Moretti, A Brighter Tomorrow (Il sol dell'avvenire), fresca dalla proiezione in concorso al Festival di Cannes, promette un'esperienza meta-comica. Il film segue la lotta di un regista cinematografico per bilanciare famiglia, arte e cultura, portando il pubblico in un viaggio attraverso le complessità della vita nell'industria cinematografica.

Celebrato ai Nastro d'Argento Awards 2023, Strangeness (La stranezza), con Toni Servillo come protagonista, offre un'avventura ispirata a eventi reali. Questo film dell'anno presenta l'incontro del leggendario drammaturgo Luigi Pirandello con attori dilettanti durante un viaggio in Sicilia negli anni '20, con sorprese inaspettate che cambiano le loro vite per sempre.

Film Reviews

Claire Cao Film Editor

“I didn’t expect...that friendship was a place where you put down roots, that remains waiting for you,” muses Pietro (Luca Marinelli), the peripatetic protagonist of The Eight Mountains, winner of the Jury Prize at Cannes 2022. Co-directors (and partners) Felix van Groeningen and Charlotte Vandermeersch take us to the Italian Alps, where holidaying city boy Pietro meets the village’s only child, Bruno (Cristiano Sassella as young Bruno; Alessandro Borghi as the adult). This idyllic summer friendship between opposites holds an intense charge that ends up powering it for decades. The film is a sweeping ode to friendship, best encapsulated when Bruno and Pietro build a house in the mountains. It, of course, represents their bond and, perhaps, the relationships we all have with those who witness our lives. A haven carved out with our bare hands. Something crude and lightless. A stubborn pillar in the glacial winter. Don’t miss these stunning performances, along with cinematographer Ruben Impens’ deft use of handheld, which highlights the spirituality and intimacy of those dizzying Alpine climbs.

The Eight Mountains screens at the ST. ALI Italian Film Festival, nationally until 25 October. Definitely check out Alice Rohrwacher’s La Chimera, a boisterous adventure following tomb raiders in Tuscany (it gives Indiana Jones a run for his money), and The Circle, Sophie Chiarello’s revealing documentary, following primary school children across five years of learning and growing. cc

BUILT FOR SPEED

Program: Built for Speed
Broadcast time: Every Friday night 8pm – 10pm
Presenters: Nick, CJ and Jimbo.

Are you a fan of rock, both alternative and classic?
 Want to know whether that cinematic blockbuster or art house flick you've heard about is worth your time and your hard-earned cash?
 Looking for some questionable comedy and pop-cultural commentary?
 Then you need to listen to Built for Speed on 88.3 Southern FM.

Built for Speed presenters CJ, Jimbo and Nick have been blasting the Southern suburbs with their favourite music and totally unbiased film reviews every Friday night at 8pm for nearly 16 years.

Whether it's established bands or music virtually no-one's heard about, we'll bring it you if we think it's any good. We're proud to say we were one of the first shows playing artists like Wilco, The Vines and MGMT.

Our film tastes are equally eclectic so if you're a fan of extreme action, sci-fi, genteel period dramas or some strange combination of these we'll let you know what's worth seeing.

We also have the occasional guest drop by and in the past have enjoyed a chat with Mick Molloy, actor Tony Martin, film industry insiders and numerous up-coming bands.

Unlike most programs on the commercial stations we take song requests and every so often tantalise our learned audience with CJ's rock quiz. So tune in this Friday and gorge yourself on the pop-cultural triple cheese burger that is "Built for Speed".

Pierfrancesco Favino in The Last Night of Amore.

The shlocky red titles splashed over aerial shots of Milan hint at the violence to come. We meet Italian cop, Franco Amore, played with world-weary cool by Pierfrancesco Favino, at the end of a long and blameless career. Amore, who never fired his gun in 35 years, was said by his colleagues to be love by name and love by nature: more of a peace-maker than Gandhi.

On the night of his retirement, Amore arrives home from a jog and stops to talk to someone in a car who then drives off. He comes up to the apartment, rings the door-bell and the surprise party thrown by his family and friends gets underway.

Amore seems adrift in all the jollity, even as his vibrant young wife Viviana (Linda Caridi) buzzes around, handing out food and making sure the daughter from his first marriages connects with him

The article text begins: 'In the crisp, mountainous air of the 2023 St. Ali Italian Film Festival's opening night, audiences were treated to a cinematic masterpiece that breathed life into the rugged beauty of the Alps, "The Eight Mountains" (Le Otto Montagne) is an adaptation of Paolo Cognetti's beloved novel of the same name, and it does not disappoint. Directors Felix van Groeningen bring a keen eye and storytelling prowess to this heartwarming tale of friendship, nature, and self-discovery.' Review of Like Sheep Among Wolves thecurb.com.au/italian-crime-thriller-like-s...

Home > Reviews > Films

SHARE: [social media icons]

Italian crime drama Like Sheep Among Wolves (Come pecore in mezzo ai lupi) directed by Lyda Patitucci is a sleek and sophisticated pressure-cooker thriller set in Rome. It focuses on twin protagonists: Stefania (Isabella Ragonese) also known as Vera, and undercover police officer embedded with Baltic gangsters, and her estranged younger brother, Bruno (Andrea Arcangeli) who was imprisoned for burglary and has found himself embroiled with the gangsters Vera is attempting to capture. Although the film is a fine thriller, what sets it apart from many other works in the genre is how emotionally intelligent and devastating it is.

Stefania is living a spartan life in anonymously rented apartments. Each day she follows a workout routine, drinks a smoothie, ensures her hair is dyed correctly, and joins a group of Serbian mobsters as they go about their unpleasant business. She is their "supplier" – she finds them weapons and communication devices. Her double life is weighing on her. Not just the extreme loneliness of being disconnected from any kind of normality, but the façade she has to keep up when she sees the gang commit atrocious acts of violence. She tells her handlers that she's not even sure what her name is any longer, and after a night of heavy drinking goes back to her previous apartment where she finds her ex-fiancee has moved on.

The screenshot shows the top of the website with a navigation menu including 'Magazine', 'Book Reviews', 'Podcast', 'Arts', 'Features', 'About', 'Prizes & Programs', 'Support', and 'Subscribe'. Below the navigation is a quote from Marcia Langton: "This book is more than a personal reckoning with Mari's forebears and their crimes. It is an account of an Australian war fought here in our own country, with names, dates, crimes, body counts and the ghostly, remorseless views of the 'settlers'. Thank you, David." This is followed by the article title 'La Chimera' by Alice Rohrwacher, noted as completing her trilogy. It features a 5-star rating from the Italian Film Festival and is by Felicity Chaplin, dated 19 September 2023. A photo of Josh O'Connor as Arthur is shown. Image - Italian Film Fest 2023

Before the official opening of the St. Ali Italian Film Festival, be among the first to experience a taste of the festival with an exclusive Prosecco Preview of Italian box office hit comedy A Brighter Tomorrow. From the legendary Nanni Moretti, the film is a multi-layered new comedy about filmmaking in the age of the streaming giants and comes direct from the 2023 Cannes Film Festival. Book here for a glass of Prosecco on arrival before the Australian premiere screening on 13 September 2023 at 6:30pm.

Moretti himself stars as Giovanni, a prolific, pedantic Roman movie director who has just started shooting 'A Brighter Tomorrow', a new period drama but everything, both personal and professional, seems to be conspiring against Giovanni: his 40-year marriage and working relationship with Paola (Margherita Buy) is in crisis, his French co-producer Pierre (Mathieu Amalric) is on the verge of bankruptcy, and the commercial prospects of his new film in a rapidly changing market are decidedly uncertain. It may be time for Giovanni to start rethinking his stringent way of doing things. You'll find the usual suspects of Moretti: regulars in the

The full 2023 Saxo Scandinavian Film Festival programme presented by Palace, has a wide and vibrant selection set to ease the winter chill. Specially curated, the programme contains the best new cinema from the Nordic region featuring films from Denmark, Finland, Iceland, Norway and Sweden.

Opening the Festival is the Australian Premiere of LET THE RIVER FLOW (Ellos eotnu - Lø elva leve), fresh from being crowned the Audience Award at the 2023 Göteborg Film Festival, and starring magnetic newcomer and proud Sámi Eila Marie Hætta Isaksen. Based on true events that inspired a generation of young Norwegians, writer/director Ole Giæver's elegant, multi award-winning drama follows a young woman who is unintentionally drawn into a protest against a dam that may flood indigenous Sámi land.

Festival Centrepiece GODLAND (Volada land) is award winning Icelandic writer/director Hlynur Pálmason's follow-up to his breakout hit A White, White Day and has been met with widespread critical acclaim. The stunning historical drama follows a Danish priest who embarks on a pilgrimage across a largely unexplored Iceland in the late 1800s.

Treats are in store for lovers of Scandi neo-Noir, thrillers and psychological dramas. From Denmark the highly anticipated sequel to box office smash Darkland, DARKLAND: THE RETURN (Underverden II) from critically acclaimed director Fenar Ahmed starring Dar Salim as an anti-hero re-entering the Copenhagen underworld undercover; SUPERPOSITION, a slick dramatic thriller with a supernatural twist in which a couple, on a tree change from capitalism because Bruno's father is overworked as a laborer.

Review of The Eight Mountains by Kinotopia

Giovanni is an avid hiker who tries to instil his love of the outdoors into his son. Whilst Pietro is physically capable and curious, he is torn between two worlds – that of the city and the unadulterated outdoors.

The grand beauty of nature is evoked through a cropped 4:3 ratio, making the film appear quaint and home-made adding to its nostalgic setting in the 1980s and later to the flip-phone noughties. This aesthetic decision also heightens the passing of time at the start, allowing the film to leap forward like a bildungsroman, following the boys as they grow older as the responsibilities of adulthood dawn on them. The surly beards which both men grow makes them indistinguishable from one another signifying both adulthood and their shared brotherhood.

Pietro still visits the village every summer but he and Bruno have drifted apart. They are still connected by their unbreakable bond in their youth in much the same way as is a close friend whom you see once every few months. Bruno's rebelliousness against the conventions of capitalism contrasts with the character of Pietro whose life stagnates under his liberal cosmopolitanism. This jarring tension also remains unsaid making the conflict between the two characters less obvious. This makes Bruno's rigid lifestyle insufferable to Pietro, although Bruno similarly despises Pietro's pretentious and petit-bourgeois lifestyle which are held in contempt by him.

Giovanni dies, allocating a small plot of land on which Bruno will build a hut. The two men decide to team up and work collaboratively on the job. This provides Pietro with respite from his meaningless and tiring work as a chef which supports his endeavours to be a writer. The abundance of his belle-lettres are recited by him throughout the film – at horribly poignant moments, as clichéd as the change of seasons. The ensuing homoerotic montages of the construction of the hut do not imply any physical intimacy between the two but instead shows the trust shared between them. Once the hut is built it becomes

Bruno's home and a space for him to revive his uncle's cheese manufacturing business. His plight as a businessman highlights that his ambition to remain peacefully in the mountains can sadly only be prolonged by a business venture.

The lack of confrontation between the conflicting ideologies of Bruno and Pietro turns the film into a celebration of unrestricted liberty because neither of the men's decisions are vindicated. Instead, the film preaches that it's best to do what you love no matter the consequences which might lead to tragic outcomes. The closest Bruno comes to confrontation is when Pietro invites some friends to visit him and they joyfully explain their plans to start a village of hipsters in the mountain. Bruno harshly rejects their idealism by asking what food they would eat. This is one of the few times where Bruno and Pietro are caught opposing each other, making the film's focus on brotherhood less plausible.

Pietro rediscovers hiking through the inspiration of diary entries and the detailed maps his father left on the mountains around Grana, leading him across the globe, growing a more rustic beard and seemingly discovering his inner spirit via the backdrop of countries like Nepal, where other mountain men live like Bruno. Pietro falls in love with a woman there and becomes a published author intent on writing, a pursuit he self-consciously admits is only possible because he lives in Nepal.

The failure of both men to reach satisfaction in their lives proves to be the true testament of The Eight Mountains; Bruno is incapable of surviving in the mountains as a man of nature because of the failures of his business and Pietro's only chance of remaining an author is to convert his money into Nepalese rupees and "live like a king". Pietro's new home in Nepal reinforces the notion that the third world is just another backyard for the West, a place for him to return with prayer flags which he can hang in his hometown with a sense of civic pride. However, these flags aren't just souvenirs, because their symbolic character is imbued with a sense of conquest. Bruno and Pietro are bound together but without the conflict and struggle which plagues actual brotherhood, making The Eight Mountains feel unfinished.

2023 ST. ALI Italian Film Festival

The 2023 ST. ALI Italian Film Festival presented by Palace returns to cinemas in Sydney, Melbourne, Brisbane, Perth, Adelaide, Canberra and Byron Bay from 19 September, transporting audiences to Italy with a stunning selection of the best in contemporary Italian cinema. Award winning drama, comedies and documentaries will feature, timed perfectly to celebrate the start of spring.

The Festival is thrilled to welcome the wonderful and talented Italian-Australian food writer, TV producer and host Silvia Colloca as the 2023 Festival Ambassador. A great lover of film, Silvia will be talking about her top picks for the festival plus her Italian heritage, and will be in attendance to open the Festival in Sydney and Melbourne.

Opening the 2023 Festival is the exciting drama THE LAST NIGHT OF AMORE (L'ultima notte di Amore) led by Italian superstar Pierfrancesco Favino. The stylish Milan set thriller follows a police lieutenant (played by Favino) who is drawn into a web of crime and corruption on the eve of his retirement and was a major Italian box office hit.

The first of two Special Presentations to be announced is the searing, intense crime story of love and revenge BURNING HEARTS (Ti mangio il cuore). Set in Puglia and shot in stunning black and white, the film features singer Elodie in her first acting role.

Festival Special Presentation CARAVAGGIO'S SHADOW (L'ombra di Caravaggio). Is an eagerly anticipated historical drama from writer/director Michele Placido, starring Riccardo Scamarcio and Isabelle Huppert. It explores the struggles of the notorious and brilliant Renaissance painter as he is investigated by the Vatican.

Other unmissable highlights include A BRIGHTER TOMORROW (Il sol dell'avvenire), the latest offering from the legendary Nanni Moretti, which arrives direct from the Cannes Film Festival where it screened in Competition. Featuring an all-star cast, Moretti's new film is a meta-comedy in which a movie director struggles with his family, art and culture.

Starring Toni Servillo, STRANGENESS (La stranezza) was the Film of the Year at the 2023 Nastro d'Argento Awards and a top box office performer in Italy. Inspired by true events, it follows legendary playwright Luigi Pirandello on a trip to Sicily in the 1920s where he meets a pair of amateur actors - a meeting which brings great surprises.

The full Festival programme will be announced and tickets on sale on Thursday 24 August.

The Eight Mountains {Italian Film Festival} – Film Review

Friendship is something which is important to each and every one of us. Of even greater importance are the best friends we make as children. Whether we stay close or travel far from one another, there's a special bond which can never be severed.

Such a friendship is formed when young Pietro's family rent a summer vacation house in Granda in the Italian Alps. There he meets Bruno, a local child of the same age and the two hit it off immediately. Pietro's father Giovanni (Filippo Tim) grows to love Bruno as if he was his own and the three embark on mountaineering expeditions together. But life can be cruel and as he ages, Pietro resists the call of the mountain. Preferring to roam, he grows distant from not only Bruno but his father as well.

LICORICE PIZZA NEW

website

RATE: 9/10

Licorice Pizza is a cute nostalgic ode to youth

Paul Thomas Anderson's new film "Licorice Pizza" is due to its Australian release soon. The film is set in the San Fernando Valley in the 1970s. The main character is a high school student who dreams of becoming an artist. On the way to fame, he will meet his first love: his classmate, Alana and star producer John Peters, to whom Barbra Streisand owes her success.

I thought for variety to publish something different this time to pay a tribute to this film which I loved a lot...
I thought to publish some extracts/short excerpts of reviews that I found online by journalists from the most positive to the most negative.

Phil de Semlien

"The sunniest film by Paul Thomas Anderson. This palimpsest of the San Fernando Valley is so bouncy and bubbly that it almost floats off the screen. It's the dizziness that takes you over with a sense of impending opportunity and a hint of naivety. I was overwhelmed with euphoria."

Justin Chang

"Anderson is an artist whose skepticism never got in the way of passion; for him, the past is more than just an excuse for nostalgia. In Licorice Pizza, he sowed a haze of highly embellished fairy tales and half-forgotten memories, collecting something more concrete and painful, but tangibly real, unlike almost any American film this year."

David Ehrlich

"In Licorice Pizza, time is not what separates people from each other, but the only thing that allows them to find each other. And this euphoric film doesn't waste a minute. <...> The plot unfolds simultaneously with logic and the snowy impulse of stand-up comedy."

Robbie Colleen

"In the world of content sorted by algorithms, Anderson's ninth film as a whole and the first since 2017's Phantom Thread is very difficult to evaluate: you will have to go back about 50 years, to such films as Hal Ashby's Shampoo or Peter Bogdanovich's The Last Picture Show."

Peter Bradshaw

"It looks lighter and sunnier than Anderson's previous paintings. As if erotic scenes were cut out of "Boogie Nights", and metaphysical anxiety from "Inborn Vice". It's a delightful film, I'll cut another piece of myself very soon."

Tim Grierson

"Narrating politicians and Hollywood producers with a touch of Robert Altman's lighthearted spirit, Licorice Pizza is gaining traction and the result is a..."

Navigation links for 'ABOUT MOVIEDOC AND OUR WRITERS', 'RATINGS GUIDE', and 'THE BEST MOVIES' are visible. A search icon is on the right. The main content area features a large image of a mountain valley with a lake and two people sitting on a rock. The title 'the EIGHT MOUNTAINS' is overlaid on the image. Below the image, the title 'THE EIGHT MOUNTAINS (LE OTTO MONTAGNE)' is shown. The review text includes the director's name (Felix van Groeningen and Charlotte Vandermeersch), the cast (Luca Marinelli, Alessandro Borghi, Lupo Barbiero, Cristiano Sassella, Filippo Timi, Elena Lietti, and Elisabetta Mazzullo), and a quote: 'When summer holidays companionship becomes a special and lifelong bond. When lifelong silence says more than words.' The review also mentions that the film is an Italian drama and that the director has previously worked on 'The Broken Circle Breakdown' and 'Beautiful Boy'. The premise is summarized as a story about two boys, Pietro and Bruno, who form an unshakable bond during a vacation in the Italian Alps in 1984.

Italian Film Festival 2023

By Peter Malone MSC | 25 September 2023

The annual Italian Film Festival screens around Australia during September-October. Here are some review-highlights.

Of particular Catholic interest are two films. Kidnapped, the story of a Jewish boy adopted by Pope Pius IX, and Caravaggio's Shadow, the artist accused of and tried for murder. But other movies to watch out for are:

THE EIGHT MOUNTAINS/ LE OTTO MONTAGNE. Italy, 2022. Starring Luca Marinelli, Alessandro Borghi, Eiona Lietti, Filippo Timi. Directed by Felix van Groeningen, Charlotte Vandermeersch. 147 minutes.

This is a drama about friendship. It is also a drama about the different paths that life takes. While the setting is the Italian Alps, filmed spectacularly in the mountains, the valleys, the lakes, in the variety of seasons, the title does not just simply refer to these locations. Rather, there is a drawing, echoes of Eastern mysticism, a circle, lines of division across the circle forming different sectors, but a central point, a peak. The explanation is that one can go to the centre, the peak, remain there or, rather, one can travel about the different sectors, the eight mountains. Which is the template, so to speak, for the two characters in this film. They are Pietro and Bruno.

The two meet as 11-year-old boys. Pietro comes from Turin with his parents for the summer holidays in the Alps. Bruno is a boy at home in the mountains. They share a number of adventures during the holidays. This childhood section of the film is very engaging.

Pietro narrates the film, and he reveals to us that several years pass and the two teenagers paths cross, Pietro recognising Bruno coming into a bar, Bruno nodding but then leaving with his fellow workers. And then, with some dismay, Pietro reveals that they did not see each other for 15 years. In the meantime, Pietro has clashed severely with his father.

It is Bruno who makes the move after the 15 years, listening to Pietro, then revealing the Bruno has been in touch with Pietro's father over the years and had received a bequest from him, asking him to build a house high in the mountains. The invitation is for Pietro to work with him.

St Ali Italian film festival 2023

Submitted by ida on Tue, 2023-09-12 01:10

St Ali Italian film festival 2023

The St Ali Italian film festival 2023 starts on September 20 to mid October in Australia and there is a fantastic line-up of movies to appeal to everyone's tastes, whether you love drama, comedies, documentaries and more.

The films are presented by Palace cinemas and talented Italian-Australian food writer, TV producer and host Silvia Colloca is the 2023 Festival Ambassador.

Opening the festival is the exciting drama, The Last Night of Amore (L'ultima notte di Amore) led by Italian superstar Pierfrancesco Favino.

Set in Milan, the thriller follows a police lieutenant (played by Favino) who is drawn into a web of crime and corruption on the eve of his retirement and the film was a major Italian box office hit.

The festival presentation of Caravaggio's shadow (L'ombra di Caravaggio), is an eagerly anticipated historical drama from writer/director Michele Placido, starring Riccardo Scamarcio and Isabelle Huppert.

It explores the struggles of the notorious and brilliant Renaissance painter as he is investigated by the Vatican. Other exciting highlights include A Brighter Tomorrow (Il sol dell'avvenire), the latest offering from the legendary Nanni Moretti. The film is a meta-comedy in which a movie director struggles with his family, art and culture. Documentaries like The Genies of Gianni Versace and The Magic are also on my must-watch list.

To celebrate the St Ali Italian film festival 2023, I am giving away some tickets to the movies!

For a chance to win one of three double passes to the film festival, just email your answers to these two simple questions to ida.chion@gmail.com by 5pm on Monday, 18 September. Winners will be notified and your tickets emailed to you.
